LEADING BUSINESS MAN

G. F. Andrae, Prominent Merchant for Many Years, Passes Away—Funeral Tuesday Afternoon.

G. F. Andrae, whose serious physical condition was briefly mentioned in last week's issue of The Gazette, passed away at his home, 541 Clark street, at 4 o'clock last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Andrae had long been in failing health, but was able to be around and look after his business interests up to the end, which came rapidly, a complication of troubles, including dropsy and other diseases, causing his demise.

Mr. Andrae was comparatively a young man, born in Ziechen, Germany, Dec. 11, 1849, and was therefore in his 61st year. When a boy of 16 years of age he came to America, joining an elder brother, Julius, at Mayville, this state, who was engaged in the dry goods business, and for whom he clerked for a time, thereafter attending Ripon College, and came to Stevens Point in 1869. After his arrival here, Mr. Andrae clerked for Henry Hoefler, the pioneer dry goods merchant, and in 1874 engaged in business for himself. Twenty-five years or more ago the Andrae & Shaffer Co. was formed, and although the junior partner passed away several years ago, the business had been carried on under the original name.

Mr. Andrae was married April 14, 1875, to Miss Ada Anderson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Anderson of this city, and she departed this life Apr. 1, 1895. He is survived by one son, G. W. Andrae, a sister, Mrs. G. W. Bergman, both of this city, the latter having resided here almost constantly since the death of Mrs. Andrae, and one brother, H. G. Andrae of Chicago.

No man has done more for the progress and betterment of Stevens Point than G. F. Andrae, and although not an employer of large forces, he was generous to his employees, and was a builder who believed in constructing the best, being the owner of the Grand Opera House block, the blocks occupied by his retail dry goods business, that in which the city hall, the Schmitt & Knope and the Palace of Sweets and also the V. Betlach and the A. E. Arenberg and the French, Campbell & Co. stores are located. He was a leading citizen and property owner, the largest individual tax payer in the county, and was a man of good education and broad intelligence, well posted in historical and current events. He was ever charitable, doing much for the poor and deserving, but always without ostentation and a desire to say nothing only to those with whom he was dealing.

The funeral took place from the residence corner Clark and Church streets, at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon, and was very largely attended, the spacious rooms being filled and many friends and acquaintances lined the walks on the outside. Services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Stemen, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who offered prayer, while Rev. C. F. Spray of Whitewater, former pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, read a passage from scripture and paid a glowing eulogy in memory of the deceased, mentioning some of the good works that he had done. Both clergymen were held in high esteem by Mr. An-

In Lumber Business.

Rhinelander News: Geo. Harrigan, an old Rhinelander boy, now a salesman for a Milwaukee wholesale house, was in the city last Thursday and Friday looking up orders. He stated that Jas. M. Harrigan, who was formerly associated with John Barnes in the insurance business here, is now engaged in the lumber trade in Detroit, and is doing well. As an insurance man Jas. Harrigan had few peers in the state, and the news that he has given up the line he was so versed in will be a surprise to many of our citizens.

Good Work on Streets.

Street Commissioner Lukaszewig has been doing some excellent work on the streets at the South Side during the past couple of weeks, including Water street, Park street, Church street and other thoroughfares. In some places the streets have been rounded up, so that the water will run off after a rain, and where the macadam streets required filling or leveling, this has been done most thoroughly. Several of the streets on the East Side have also been improved by Mr. Lukaszewig's crew of workmen under his direction, and the work is appreciated by property owners generally.

Their Youngest Child.

Anton, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Peck, 539 Normal avenue, died at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, after a three weeks' illness, during which time he suffered greatly. This is the fifth child that Mr. and Mrs. Peck have lost in death, all dying in infancy and within about a year of each other. Besides the parents, there are nine brothers and sisters left to mourn the death of little Anton.

The funeral will be held from St. Peter's church at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. Father Elbert officiating, and interment will follow in the parish cemetery.

FOUR RECEIVE SENTENCE

One Man Goes to Waupun. Another to Reformatory, One to Waukesha and One Pays Fine.

Shortly after the October term of circuit court convened Tuesday morning, after a recess of ten days, the four parties who had either been found guilty or entered a plea to having no defense to charge preferred against them, were brought before Judge Webb for sentence.

The first was Fred Williams, who stole a mare last May belonging to S. G. O'Brien of Auburndale, and which strayed from the Connor farm at that place. The animal was taken up by a farmer in the town of Eau Pleine, and Williams, who had secured a description of the stray beast, appeared a few days later, claimed the same and brought it to this city, where he was arrested. He was given two years at the Green Bay reformatory, sufficient time to repent of his folly.

John Annas, the 18 year old lad who stole a bicycle on the 23 of July belonging to Carl Jacobs of this city, and who pleaded guilty was sent to the Industrial School at Waukesha, to remain until he is 21, if not sooner given his liberty.

Chas. Kalachinski entered a plea of guilty to having broken into the store of S. J. Kryer on North Second street, which act was committed on the 22d of July, and he was sent to the State Prison at Waupun, for two years.

Frank Lica was arrested on the charge of stealing six small pigs belonging to Myron Grant and Nellie Gates, the total value being $30. The pigs disappeared on the 28th of May, and although Lica endeavored to prove that the pigs found in his possession were bought from a farmer on the Plover road, south of this city, he was found guilty by a jury after a trial of three days. The court imposed a fine, which together with the costs, amounted to $200, which was paid and the defendant, who had been out on bail, discharged.

Very Low at Minneapolis.

Mrs. A. B. Dwinell and Mrs. Roy Hagan were called to Minneapolis last Saturday morning by a message announcing the dangerous illness of their daughter and sister, Mrs. J. C. Miller, who will be well remembered here as Miss Bernice Dwinell. The lady underwent an operation at one of the Minneapolis hospitals on Sunday and the latest reports from there are not very encouraging as to her recovery. Some months ago a kettle of boiling water was accidentally tipped onto her little son, horribly scalding his back, and since that time he has been an especially great care to the mother. This tended to break down her otherwise strong constitution and therefore she was not in condition to withstand the surgical operation which became imperative as the only means of prolonging her life. Mrs. Miller's many friends at the old home here will fervently pray for a favorable outcome.

Grant Man Goes Crazy.

Jes. Kalanath, a farmer whose home is in the town of Grant, and who has a wife and six children, was taken to the state hospital near Oshkosh this morning by Undersheriff Geo. A. Suberland. Sheriff Berry received a hurried call to Grant Tuesday afternoon and brought Kalanath to this city, where he was pronounced insane and ordered committed to the state hospital. Mr. Sutherland had a very strenuous few minutes with the crazy man at the depot, he being determined to board the passenger train on the Portage branch and it took several men to get him into the other train and to handcuff him. It is said that Kalanath became insane over real estate deals in which he was victimized.

Interment took place in the family lot in Forest cemetery, the pallbearers being G. S. Gunderson, J. W. Duncan, J. A. Mural, E. A. Arenberg, Max Krems and Aug. Goerke. A delegation from both Shaurette and Stumpf Ledges of Odd Fellows also attended the obsequies. Relatives and friends present from away were H. G. Andrae and Gustav Bergman of Chicago, brother and nephew of the deceased; Mrs. Frances Metcalf and Mrs. W. G. Bate of Platteville, and Mrs. Perry of Fond du Lac, nieces; A. R. Margraf of New London, a nephew, and Adolf Hoefler of Milwaukee.

LIVED NEARLY A CENTURY

Jacob Childs, Born in Connecticut in 1817, Passes Away After a Short Illness.

Jacob Childs, probably the oldest person in Portage county, and until very recently as active as the average man of half his years, passed away at the family home, 303 Center avenue, at 8 o'clock last Sunday evening. The direct cause of death was septic bronchitis. Mr. Childs had been in poor health for a couple of months, but was able to be up and about until a few weeks ago, and in fact had made several trips to the business part of town. For the past three or four weeks he had failed quite rapidly, although at times there appeared a remarkable change for the better, giving his family and friends hope for recovery. The venerable gentleman retained his faculties until almost the last moment and was able to converse with those about his bedside. He then closed his eyes, turned partly over in bed and sank into that last long sleep.

Mr. Childs was 93 years old last Friday, his birthplace being Stafford, Conn., and the date Oct. 14, 1817. He remained in his native town until about 21 years of age and then chose the life of a seaman. For the next three years he visited many countries bordering on the Atlantic, gaining much valuable information, and his experiences during this time were always vividly retained. In 1841 Mr. Childs came west to Wisconsin and a couple of years later, on Nov. 19, 1843, he was married at what is now Lannon, Waupaca county, to Miss Julia Parmelia Harmon. About this time the gentleman made an overland trip to California, where he remained some fourteen months, and upon his return he and his wife moved to Willow Creek, Waupaca county, where they lived for the next seven years. With the exception of a couple of years at Weyauwega the family home has since been in Portage county, where Mr. and Mrs. Childs had lived for 47 years. They purchased a tract of land about midway between Amherst and Amherst Junction, which was developed into one of the best farms in this county. Because of the infirmities of old age, Mr. Childs and his wife decided to give up farm duties about ten years ago and moved to this city, buying comfortable home on Center avenue. They retained their property in Amherst township until last fall and in the meantime Mr. Childs made frequent trips there and was especially interested in bee culture. He always maintained many swarms of bees on the place and derived a comfortable income from the sale of honey.

Besides his widow, who is now 84 years of age, the deceased gentleman is survived by six sons and daughters, Mrs. Lucy Weston of Isanti, Minn., Mrs. O. W. Drake of Reeder, N. D., B. M. Childs of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Clarence E. Childs of Palo Alto, Cal., Mrs. C. W. Rice of Cuba, Mo., and Chas. F. Childs of this city. Four children preceded their father in death.

On Friday evening the Ohiyesa society entertained their brothers of the Atheneum at a poverty party in the gymnasium. The invitations were unique and in keeping with the occasion, being written on wrapping paper. All stages of poverty were represented in the costumes which seemed to set the wearers at perfect ease. Games, dancing and impromptu speeches and stunts were the order of the evening. The Ohiyesa proved themselves royal entertainers and a jolly crowd.

On Saturday evening Pres. and Mrs. Sims entertained Regent Nelson and the unmarried members of the faculty at a three course dinner, the occasion being their twenty-third wedding anniversary. The tables were prettily decorated with crysanthemums, carnations and pink roses. Those assisting with the serving were: Lucile Davenport, Henrietta Moehrke, Rosetta Johnson and Bessie Burdick. Following the dinner a number of songs were given, Miss Dineen singing "The Rosary" and "Violets," Miss Menaul "Bend Me Stream," "Sing Me to Sleep" and "Sweet Miss Mary," after which the guests departed declaring it to have been a most enjoyable evening.

A number of our teachers will be in attendance at the meeting of the Northwestern Wisconsin Teachers' Association at Eau Claire, October 21 and 22d. Pres. Sims opens the general meeting on Friday with an address on "What is Needed to Produce More Efficient Teachers." Miss Amanda Zeller speaks before the primary and kindergarten teachers' section on "The Fundamentals of Education from a Kindergarten and Primary View Point." Prof. Hyer is scheduled to lead a discussion on "Problems of Third Grade in Arithmetic and Writing," but will not be able to be present. Among others who appear on the program are several former students of S. P. N.: Albert Brunstad, Oscar Evenson, H. A. Schuchard, M. M. Ames and W. D. Sansum.

APPEAL TO DEMOCRATS

State Chairman Asks for Assistance to Carry on a Vigorous Closing Campaign—Help the Cause.

To the Democrats of the State of Wisconsin:—The State Central Committee takes this means of addressing the Democracy of this state. The facts that we wish to present to you are briefly these: The state organization has been seriously handicapped in this campaign by the so-called twenty per cent. law. As never before, it required an expenditure of approximately $2,500 by the State Central Committee to place its state ticket in nomination. It was the first bridge that had to be crossed, and it was of vital importance that the state ticket should get the requisite twenty per cent. vote. It necessitated the expenditure of that amount of money by the State Central Committee to insure the nomination of a state ticket.

By reason of these unusual expenditures, our financial resources are low. In spite of contributions from county organizations and those received from many men of moderate means, we are in need of funds to run our campaign.

There are certain necessary expenses connected with party organization and a campaign. The printing bills, the clerical hire, and other expenses incidental to the campaign, make it absolutely necessary to have a moderate amount of money to work with. A great many prominent Democrats have volunteered to give their services as speakers in this campaign and to pay all their own expenses. There are evidences of loyalty and enthusiasm, and we have received individual contributions from local Democrats ranging from $5 to $100.

There are 170,000 Democrats in this state. If every Democrat would contribute five cents, we would have an adequate campaign fund. Of course, it would be impossible to collect such a sum in that way, but there should be, and there are, a great many Democrats who would be willing and able to send the state organization a postoffice order or check for $1.00 or more, as their means will permit. There should be a large number of Democrats who could send $10 and still more who could send $50 or $100. The Democratic party has no source of revenue except such as we are now appealing to. We are waging a poor man's campaign, and must expect our financial support from the "rank and file."

We have a splendid platform, with candidates whom we can present to the suffrage of this state with much pride. The outlook is more encouraging for Democratic success this year than it has been since 1890. Certainly this is true in the country at large, and it is true of the situation in this state. We ask for your support. We ask that you send to the State Central Committee as much as you can afford. Every dollar will be deposited to the credit of the State Democratic Trust Fund, and every dollar will be carefully expended and accounted for. You can help us materially and we rely upon your loyalty to do so.

Now if upon reading this open letter you feel inclined and are able to help us, please do so, and do so immediately. Write your check or get your post-office money order NOW, put it in an envelope NOW, and send it to us RIGHT NOW. Yours very truly, Democratic State Central Committee.

FOR CONSTIPATION

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures.

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which are odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Alex Krems Jr. Drug Co., prescription experts, corner Main street and Strong's avenue.

MEAT PRICES HERE AND ABROAD.

How the price of commodities is affected by protection as compared with free trade is shown by the price of meat in Germany and in England. In Germany the Agrarians, land owners, by means of a highly protective tariff and all sorts of restrictions upon imports of meat, have so increased the price as to make it prohibitive for the poorer classes.

In England the price of meat and cattle, upon which there are no imports, has varied slightly during the past three years. The London Economist, which publishes a monthly index number of the price of commodities, in its September issue gives the index number for meat on September 1st as 143; the index number for May 1, 1907, is also given as 143, so that the price is the same today as it was three years ago.

Great Britain imports cattle and meat from the United States, the Argentine Republic, Denmark, Holland, France, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, and the price is fixed in this free trade market according to the law of supply and demand. As the price has been stable in the English market for three years it is fair to assume that the supply has been ample; for if there had been a shortage competition would certainly have advanced prices.

In the United States, as in Germany, with our protective tariff the price of meat has advanced and will remain high until we let down our tariff protection walls and allow competition as England does.

IT GROWS HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed.

If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c and $1. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Alex Krems Jr. Drug Co., prescription experts, corner Main street and Strong's avenue.

REPUBLICAN OFFICERSHOLDERS.

Creating nearly 7,000 permanent Republican officeholders at "one stroke of the pen" is the latest political accomplishment of President Taft.

He has issued an order placing all the assistant postmasters under the civil service law.

Whether these Republican partisan officials can be made to attend strictly to business, instead of pulling wires to nominate and elect those who made them will be the burning question.

Civil service reform must be fairly administered or we want none of it.

It is a serious question to settle whether a standing army of partisan officeholders is the best condition for a Democratic Republic.

It will be well

for Democrats to keep their eyes on these assistant postmasters so that those who interfere in behalf of the Republican organization can be removed when the Democrats get into power.

Every citizen has the right to aspire to an appointment as well as an elective office, and the appropriation of most of the appointive offices by the Republicans is not true civil service reform, and is not binding upon the Democrats.

Butter and Cheese.

According to a report just received from J. Q. Emery, dairy and food commissioner, there were 27 creameries and 3 cheese factories in Portage county in 1909.

The cheese factories are supplied by 55 patrons, with 519 cows contributing, and $20,150 was received from the sale of the cheese, which represented

144,272 pounds.

The number of pounds of butter made was 2,127,143, for which $549,423 was received.

The number of creamery patrons was 2,019, and 14,713 cows contributed.

The total amount received from both butter and cheese was $750,547.

A similar report, with some changes, has been previously published in these columns.

WILL MEET AT ALMOND

State Experiment Station Will Hold Meeting With Demonstration of New Varieties of Potatoes.

A meeting of potato growers of Portage county is called for Saturday, October 29, in Hicks' hall, Almond, at 2:30 p. m., under the auspices of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Station of Madison. The program for the afternoon will include an exhibit of potato diseases and insects, with an address explaining this by the station representative, J. G. Milward. A demonstration of the preparation of spray mixtures by Mr. Milward will also be a feature. A display of many varieties of potatoes grown at the Northern Experimental farms by the station, will show the relative merits of the various varieties for northern planting.

PRIZES FOR LOCAL POTATOES.

A prize exhibition for potatoes grown by local farmers will be conducted under the following rules:

1. All potatoes must be shown in peck samples in baskets furnished by the exhibitor.

2. All exhibits must be true to name and grown by the exhibitor entering the sample.

3. No exhibitor can compete for more than one premium offered for the same variety.

4. All exhibits must be in place before the opening of the meeting at 2:30 p. m.

Premiums to be awarded consist of samples of various varieties of seed potatoes taken from the northern trial stations at Spooner and Cornell. This seed will be given to the prize-winning exhibitors for planting, and all will be made at the time of the meeting.

Every local potato grower who has a reliable variety, which has produced a good crop this year, should enter samples in this contest.

LIST OF EXHIBITS

1. Best sample Rural New Yorker 1st premium, half bushel selected early variety; 2nd premium, peck selected early variety.

2. Best sample of Early Ohio 1st premium, half bushel selected late variety; 2nd premium, peck selected late variety.

3. Best sample Early Rose 1st premium, half bushel selected late variety; 2nd premium, peck selected late variety.

4. Best sample Triumph or Stray Beauty 1st premium, half bushel selected early variety; 2nd premium, peck selected early variety.

5. Best sample Burbank 1st premium, half bushel selected early variety; 2nd premium, peck selected early variety.

6. Best sample of any other early variety 1st premium, half bushel selected seed; 2nd premium, peck selected seed.

7. Best sample of any other late variety 1st premium, half bushel selected seed; 2nd premium, peck selected seed.

DEMOCRATS SHOULD VOTE THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

The campaign of the Republican insurgents in Wisconsin is logically unsound. In their argument and campaigning methods, they have almost entirely abandoned the Republican national platform, and the Republican administration, and Congress.

In so far as they have abandoned the Republican platforms and policies, they are entitled to the approval of all Democrats.

Naturally, when asked to vote the Republican ticket by the progressives, a Democrat will answer, "You have repudiated your own national platform, and largely adopted ours. Why should I change?" The usual answer given is, "You can not trust the Democratic party, because a few times in the last Congress, less than five per cent. of the Democratic congressmen and senators voted with the stalwarts."

The plain answer to this objection is: If five per cent. of the Democratic legislators voted wrong a few times, and that is conclusive proof that the Republican party is unworthy of trust?

Your position would naturally lead the independent voter to believe that you admit that under Republican administration, the special interests control the party, control legislation, the protected interests have framed and dictated all of the Republican tariff bills. The cabinet and congress are composed largely of agents of the system. The present administration is an utter failure, and the protective system has broken down.

Your position would be more likely to lead the stalwart voter, if he wishes to vote for Democratic principles, to vote for them under the name of the Democratic ticket.

Generally the political faith of a party must be determined by its last national platform. Hence, the

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.

Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for rewicking. Finished in brass or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

How Much Will You Pay?

To have your eyes cured Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve only costs 25c and will kill. Good for nothing but the eyes.

What a political mess these Republican leaders are getting into! Only the other day President Taft was cheek-by-jowl with Cannon and Aldrich and their standpatters; now that the stalwarts are getting the worst of it, he says that he is a progressive. Roosevelt has been even more erratic. When he was president he was hand-in-glove with the old stalwart leaders from Hanna down, and now he is an insurgent; perhaps because he thinks it is the most opportune faction to tie to. These Republican leaders may be "practical men," but they certainly slopp around too much for sober people to follow them.

GREAT SALT LAKE.

An immense Fresh Water Sea Some Thousands of Years Ago.

In glacial times Great Salt Lake was a magnificent fresh water lake the size of Lake Huron—that is, about 18,000 square miles—and had its outlet into the Port Neuf, the Snake and the Columbia rivers. This was at least 10,000 years ago, but since that time the climate has become arid, and not enough water has fallen over the Great Basin to supply that lost by evaporation. Consequently the lake has ceased to flow from its outlet and gradually dried up from over a thousand feet deep to fifteen feet and from 18,000 square miles in area to less than 1,700.

It is now seventy miles long and about thirty wide, but is beautiful still and is the home of myriads of sea birds and other waterfowl. It is the great resort of the people of Utah, for from 3,000 to 5,000 visit its shores daily in the summer, and many bathe in its waters. The lake contains about 7,000,000,000 tons of salt.

When the lake is high the salt is so diluted that it has gone down to 11 per cent. When it is low, as it was not many years ago, it reached saturation which for the mixed ingredients of the water is 30 per cent.

There is nothing mysterious about it any more than there would be about a teacup with a teaspoonful of salt in the bottom. If a tablespoonful of water were put in the cup on the salt it would taste very salty, but if the cup were filled to the brim with water it would not.

The salt has come from the water of the rivers flowing into it since it ceased to flow from its outlet. All river water contains salt, and the annual evaporation of from two to five cubic miles of this water leaves large quantities of salt behind, and so it has accumulated for thousands of years.

Spirit of Young America.

A teacher in a Philadelphia public school narrated the following account of how an aspiring young Italian citizen was beginning to show the effects of an American environment. The story, which was told at a teachers' association meeting, runs something like this:

Tony had been away from school about a week, and when he showed up one morning the teacher asked him where he had been.

"I ran away," said Tony.

"Ran away! What did you do that for?" asked the teacher.

"My father was going to lick me, so I thought I'd run away," was the reply.

The teacher by further questioning brought out the fact that Tony for some trifling dereliction had been threatened with a beating and had stayed away from home the best part of a week.

"But your father has the right to whip you," said the teacher.

"Yes, he may," added Tony, "but I was born in this country, and I don't want no foreigners to lick me."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Costa Rican Volcanoes.

Costa Rica has been subject to earthquakes for many years. Part of the republic is exceedingly mountainous, and in this part of the country there are more than a score of volcanoes, some of them dead, but a few that break out periodically. There are three or four that have been active for more than a century. Some of these are near San Jose, the capital. Costa Ricans have always believed that earthquakes, which the country has experienced ever since it was first settled by Spanish adventurers, were caused by the volcanoes. There is good ground for this belief, because it has been noticed that earthquakes of more or less intensity followed the activity of these volcanoes. If the volcanic eruptions were violent the earthquakes were correspondingly severe.

Walter Tack is up from Fond du Lac to visit at the parental home for several days.

Mrs. F. H. Patterson visited at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. G. Preston, at Neenah, the last of the week.

W. W. Bakens, a foreman in the Soo machine shops at North Fond du Lac, spent part of Sunday among friends in this city.

Mrs. M. E. Kenyon and Mrs. L. J. Myrick left for Minneapolis, Friday morning, to visit with relatives and friends a couple of days.

Thos. W. Flannagan, of Minneapolis, general storekeeper for the Soo railway, was a business visitor to Stevens Point on Thursday last.

R. A. Oberlatz, manager of the Stevens Point Foundry & Machine Co., was a business visitor to Marshfield and Grand Rapids on Saturday last.

Albert Burt, a freight conductor on the Soo, is another of the Abbotsford people who is about to move to this city. Mr. Burt has rented a house on McCulloch street and will come here with his family within a week or two.

Geo. Tariff shipped his household goods here from Abbotsford the first of the week and his family came down Tuesday forenoon. They will soon be located in one of the Hyde estate houses on Center street. Mr. Tariff is conductor on the Soo line.

Frank Podach, Jr., who is employed as a brakeman on the Soo line, spent most of last week at his home in this city nursing a very painful hand. Three weeks ago he scratched one of his fingers and several days later blood poisoning developed. He has now nearly recovered and will resume his position this week.

Frank Sutton, who had been engaged to live in the old Rice Lake for several years, has returned to his home in Stevens Point and his wife will be with him a few days. Mr. Sutton is now fully determined as to his future, but it may take some time in business here.

Ed J. Mathie, a Stevens Point young man, a graduate of the local Normal and the State University, is now reporting for the Appleton Post.

Three families arrived here from Abbotsford last Thursday, being those of Conductors Ed. Hayes and John Saxton and Train Dispatcher C. E. Crockett.

Mrs. Chas. H. Rohrdanz left for Milwaukee on this morning's train for a visit of several days with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Hornberg, who was married here in August and has since been making her home in the state metropolis.

J. C. O'Brien, night yardmaster for the Soo line at Abbotsford, who is preparing to move to Stevens Point, has rented the Mrs. Sylvia Merrill house at 513 Center avenue, and not one of the Hyde houses on Center street, as published a couple of weeks ago.

Mrs. B. Bender of this city, accompanied by her son-in-law, Nicholas Trierweiler, of Plover, will leave for Marshfield Friday morning, where she will pay a brief visit to her daughter, Miss Lizzie, who has been taking treatment in a hospital for a couple of weeks. From Marshfield Mrs. Bender will proceed to Denver, Colo., where she intends to spend the winter with her son, John. Mr. Trierweiler will return home from Marshfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Erdman Reichelt and two little daughters boarded last Saturday morning's Soo train enroute to Los Angeles, Cal., where they expect to make their future home. Mr. Reichelt intends to buy a small tract of land near that city and engage in truck farming. He has not enjoyed robust health for several years but hopes that the mild climate of California will restore him to old time vigor. The gentleman has lived in Stevens Point since childhood.

Fred M. Ferrell, who has been engaged in business in New York state for the past several months, was called home last week on account of the serious condition of his mother, Mrs. John J. Ferrell, who has been very ill at the family home, 210 Center street, for about four weeks, suffering from nervous collapse and is gradually failing. Mrs. Ferrell is 74 years of age, a most estimable lady who has numerous friends who will be pained to learn that there is little or no chance for her recovery.

OBITUARY

MARCUS BURKE.

After an illness of only a couple of weeks, Marcus Burke passed away at his home, 113 St. Louis avenue, shortly after 11 o'clock last Thursday night, death resulting mainly from weight of years.

The deceased gentleman was a native of Germany, born in 1828, and when a young man of 20 years came to America, and had visited nearly every part of this country. For the past 23 years he had been a resident of Stevens Point, and had practically retired from active work. He is survived by his widow, who is a sister of Mrs. Chas. Campbell of Carson and the late Frederick Mersch of Sharon, besides four children, Matthew, Joseph, Genevieve and Mrs. Arthur A. Miller, all of this city.

The funeral was held from St. Stephen's Catholic church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Rev. W. J. Rice officiating, with interment in the parish cemetery. The pallbearers were Matt and Nick Britz, Peter Koltz, Fred Mersch, Henry Myers and Peter Rhoda.

JULIUS KRYZAN.

Julius Kryzan, a resident of this city for over twenty-five years, passed away at his home, 922 Briggs street, at 2 o'clock last Sunday morning. Although he had been in poor health for the past couple of years, and had gradually failed, the end came suddenly and unexpectedly and was a great shock to his family and friends.

The deceased was born in Germany and was 55 years old. He came direct from his native land to Stevens Point, and had resided here constantly for nearly 26 years. He was an industrious citizen, but had been unable to do any manual labor for the past two years. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Edward, Henry and Fred, besides a brother, August, of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Kaczmarek of this city, and Mrs. Josie Blask and Mrs. Frances Schloss, who live in the old country.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held from St. Peter's church Tuesday morning, Rev. S. A. Elbert officiating. The Sacred Heart Society, to which the deceased belonged, attended in a body.

HENRY JARFE.

Henry Jarfe, a resident of Stevens Point between 35 and 40 years, nearly all of which time he occupied the home at 618 Elk street, died very suddenly last Monday afternoon. Mr. Jarfe had been troubled with rheumatism for many years, but was able to be up and about at all times and Monday forenoon appeared to be as well as usual. He ate a hearty dinner, but shortly afterwards complained of not feeling well and went into the living room and lay down on a couch. Mrs. Jarfe continued about her household duties for a couple of hours and as her husband did not awaken as soon as usual, she went to his side and noticed a peculiar pallor. Surmising that all was not right, she summoned Rev. Richter from across the street, and on the latter's arrival he saw that Mr. Jarfe was dead. The end apparently came without a struggle and was very likely caused by paralysis of the heart.

Mr. Jarfe was a native of Hanover, Germany, in which province he was born 75 years ago the 8th of this month. Coming to America in 1870, he lived for a couple of years in Iowa and Minnesota and then moved to Stevens Point. Thirty-six years ago he was married in this city to Miss Minnie Sabin and they at once went to housekeeping in the home Mr. Jarfe built at 618 Elk street. During the earlier years of his residence here Mr. Jarfe was employed by the late Capt. J. O. Johnsen and for a long time also acted as nightwatch at the mill of Wm. Weston & Son, predecessors to the John Week Lumber Co. He was for quite a few years section foreman on the Wisconsin Central railroad, his territory extending from this station to Junction City. Some ten years ago the gentleman bought a tract of land near the southern limits of the city, formerly occupied as the poor farm, and carried on a dairy business there for several years. Having accumulated a comfortable amount of this world's goods, he had lived practically retired life of late, devoting his spare moments to a garden and the care of his chickens and cow. No children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Jarfe and the only surviving relatives are the widow, one sister, Mrs. Mayer at Grinnell, Ind., and another sister at the old home in Germany.

Rev. B. O. Richter, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church, will say a prayer at the house at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after which the remains will be conveyed to St. Paul's church, where services will be held. Interment will follow in the Lutheran cemetery.

Reception for the Regent.

President and Mrs. Sims entertained Regent Nelson and the unmarried members of the Normal school faculty informally at a six o'clock dinner Saturday evening last. Yellow and white carnations formed the decorations in the living room, pink carnations with mignonette in the parlor, and pink roses with ferns in the dining room.

President Sims, Regent Nelson and eight of the guests were seated at the large table in the dining room, while at small tables in the ball and living room the others found their places.

After a sumptuous dinner the guests withdrew to the parlor, where they were favored with music. Miss Mae Dunn sang "The Rose," and "Violets," and Miss Anna Menau sang "Sweet Miss Mary," "Sing Me to Sleep," and "Bendemere Stream."

The remainder of the evening was passed in pleasant conversation and in looking at a collection of pictures brought by Miss Nannie Gray from Oberammergau. All agreed that the evening had been exceedingly enjoyable.

The name of Fred B. Rawson will appear in the Democratic column on the official ballot as the candidate for Congress in this district, he having received the required 20 per cent. vote.

Mr. Rawson, who is a resident and leading business man of Plainfield, is a man of ability and intelligence, a clean, upright citizen, not of the office-seeking class, and if elected to the office to which he has been called, will prove an honor to the 8th district and the entire state.

Chilton Times: If the Democrats of the eighth district do their duty on election day there will be some chance of sending Frederick B. Rawson of Plainfield, Waushara county, to congress in place of Jas. H. Davidson, who for twelve years has been a willing aid to "big business." There are hundreds of Republicans in the different counties comprising the district who are well aware of the position that Davidson took while in congress on important questions before the house which affected their interest. He was found lined up with Cannon and not until he got his ear to the ground and found that he stood some show to be defeated did he come out and announce himself a progressive. He promises no reform. His proclivity for straddling has been so great that both factions of the party have become disgusted with him. The voters of this district have the power to keep Davidson at home and should do so, for he has outlived his usefulness as a congressman.

THE LAW CONSTITUTIONAL.

The twenty per cent. section of the primary law has been held to be constitutional by the Supreme Court. The court handed down its decision to that effect at Madison late Saturday afternoon. Five justices upheld the constitutionality of the law and two, Chief Justice Winslow and Justice Timlin dissented. The action was brought by Lawrence A. McGreal et al. against County Clerk Frank O. Phelps to compel him to place the name of Mr. McGreal, who failed to receive the required twenty per cent. of the party vote, on the official ballot, and also by T. H. Hanna of this city, Democratic candidate for state senator.

The court held that voters had the right to organize into parties and the legislature had no right to interfere in such organization. The Supreme Court also handed down a decision declaring Levi H. Bancroft the Republican nominee for attorney general and ordering the secretary of state to certify his name to the county clerks as the one to appear upon the official ballot in the regular election.

Notwithstanding the action of the supreme court in declaring the 20 per cent. law valid, the Democrats of Wisconsin will not be found sleeping on the 8th of November. This action should stir everyone to leave nothing undone for party success, and with a united effort this will be the result.

Democrats of thirty-five counties in Wisconsin that are disfranchised in so far as their local candidates are concerned, are bitterly disappointed over the action of the supreme court in its decision, handed down last Saturday, declaring the 20 per cent. law constitutional. The action of the court, however, will be of benefit to the party in the future, as it will teach Democrats who are inclined to follow the wiles and dictates of false idols a wholesome lesson.

Republican organs may tell you that the county option issue cut no figure in this campaign, that it makes no difference which party wins in November, county option is practically dead. If you are in favor of county option, it is all right to believe these assertions, but if you are opposed to county option and are satisfied with the regulation laws already on the statute books, vote the Democratic ticket from top to bottom. If the next legislature is strongly Republican, county option will become a law.

Democrats should remember that the decision of the supreme court in the 20 per cent. matter, does not effect the state ticket, which will be placed in the first column on the official ballot. Turn out and elect Adolph Schmitz for governor, and the other excellent candidates, and then pass over and vote for the Democratic legislative and county candidates in another column, full details of which will be published in future issues of The Gazette.

"I suffered with kidney and bladder trouble, but two months' treatment with Peruna made me a well and strong man."

"My wife felt weak and was easily tired and was also troubled with various pains, but since she took Peruna she is well and strong."

"We are both very grateful to you and gladly do we give this unsolicited testimonial, feeling that it is the least we can do in return for what Peruna has done for us."

Catarrh Entirely Relieved.

Mr. Ira Henney, Fairfield, Freestone Co., Texas, writes:

"I am completely cured of all symptoms of catarrh."

"I can truly say that Peruna is the best medicine I ever saw. I will always recommend Peruna to all my friends, for catarrh."

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio, writes: "My daughter Allie, after taking three bottles of your Peruna, is entirely cured of catarrh of the head of two years' standing. We recommend Peruna to anybody who has catarrh."

Peruna is manufactured by the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Dont Burn Up Your New Dress

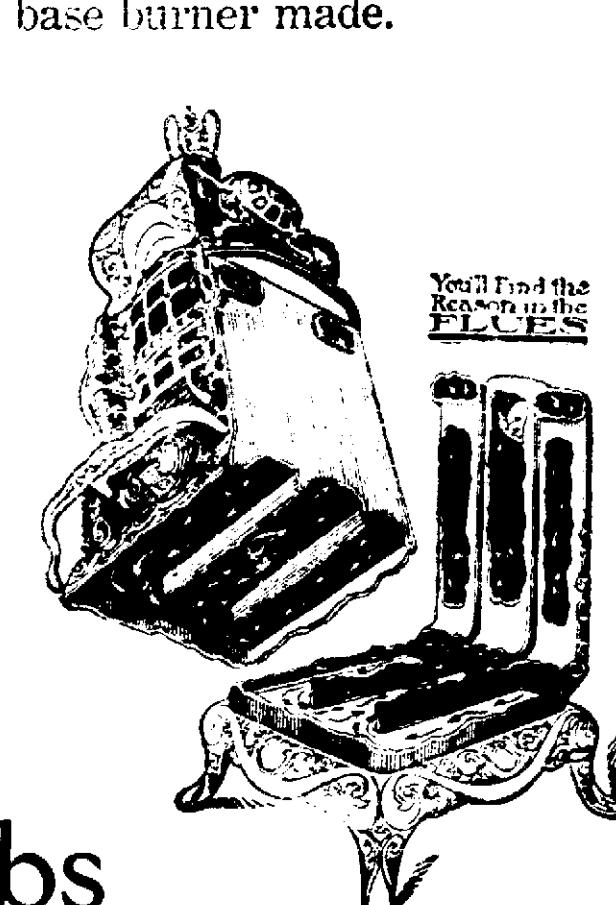

Scores of women will do it this winter, in some poor, old base burner; and they'll get very little warmth out of it, too.

Don't you think it would be a good idea to buy a First Class Favorite Base Burner, with Triple Exposed Flues, and save enough on your coal bills this winter to buy a new dress in the spring? It is a positive fact—the Favorite does burn less coal and throws out more heat than any other base burner made.

It took an organized body of stove experts nearly fifty years to perfect it. There is no other Base Burner like it, because the features that make it such a wonderful and economical heater are patented. It is the most attractive and best made stove, too.

In the Triple exposed Flues you will find one reason why it will save fully one half on your coal bills. But there are many other reasons—too many to mention here.

Come and see us, and we will show you that there is no other base burner that will compare with the Favorite.

During his recent visit to the west, F. M. Playman spent several days at a new town in Washington named Mukwonago, near which place he invested in a tract of ten acres of land for which he paid $1,600, or at the rate of $160 per acre. Within the past few days Mr. Playman has disposed of this property at an advance of $300, or at the rate of $200 per acre.

Wm. Rothman has bought of the P. Rothman estate the residence at 51 Briggs street, just west from Smith street, now occupied by N. J. Knepp's family. Mr. Knepp will continue to occupy the place until next spring, and Mr. and Mrs. Rothman will remain for the winter at their present home, the Mrs. C. Krems house, corner Normal avenue and Union street.

Mrs. Clark McNally, of Richland Center, has been assisting in the household duties at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. E. Larson, for the past few days, during the illness of the latter. While running a meat grinder on Monday, Mrs. McNally was unfortunate in getting the second finger of her right hand in the grinder, breaking the bone between the knuckle and last joint and bruising that member.

Mrs. Southwick, Lindores, von Newpert, Jr., and Gregory drove to Wausau, last Thursday, going up in the Koshkonong car, and attended the quarterly meeting of the district medical association. The meeting was one of the best ever held in the district, about sixty medical men being in attendance, and they were royally entertained by the Wausau physicians, closing with a banquet which ended after midnight.

J. D. Langosky, the North Side cigar maker, is about to commence action against the Soo Railroad Co., for personal injuries he received nearly two years ago while crossing the railroad bridge in this city, at which time his wife was killed and Mr. Langosky had one of his elbows badly shattered and was otherwise hurt. Among Mr. Langosky's contentions are that the train greatly exceeded the speed limit of six miles per hour within the city limits and that the engineer failed to bring his train to a stop before the accident occurred.

Mr. Nornberg, a prominent resident of Sharon township, has been making frequent trips to the city to receive treatment from Dr. Rice for a severe case of blood poisoning in his left hand. He bruised the middle knuckle on the third finger a few weeks ago, the injury being considered a rather trifling one at the time, but blood poisoning developed some days later and for a time his whole arm was affected. Mr. Nornberg is now well on the road to recovery.

The Soo line is doing some extensive work in putting in two concrete bridges, one on Lincoln and one on Wilson street. Lem Crossman of Stevens Point is foreman and the cost of improvements will be about $15,000. The bridge will not be arched like the one on Main street, but flat like a steel bridge. The center piers will be arched.

KNOWLTON.

E. M. Taylor, one of our number a few years ago, but who has recently taken up his residence in Milwaukee at the Soldiers' Home, was granted a furlough and came to Knowlton Friday evening, visiting among friends until Sunday night. All were pleased to see again this soldier of the civil war.

When we meet the few that are left from that band of volunteers who so quickly responded to the call of Lincoln for 75,000 militia to defend the Union, and again on May 3, 1861, for 42,000 volunteers for three years, finally making an army on July 1, 1861, of 183,588 "boys in blue," should we not be ready to compliment and declare their bravery and loyalty to their country, home and friends?

Robert Elcock, one of our former neighbors, now a resident of the town of Dewey at the McHugh farm, came up for the day, Monday, spending it with friends here. In spite of his 83 years, he proves himself a fine conversationalist and is able to give some very interesting reminiscences of the long ago when this entire section was almost uninhabited compared with the number of people that now live in almost every niche and corner. Mr. Elcock arrived at Stevens Point Oct. 16, 1851, preceding the next day to what has always been called the "Old Hall place," this being about nine miles from Stevens Point, on the Wausau road. Last Monday was virtually the 59th anniversary of his arrival in northern Wisconsin, which he remembered and enjoyed celebrating among former friends. He has resided in this locality continually ever since, making his home for some time at this hotel or "lawn," as the early founders called them. He assisted in putting up the different buildings necessary, having helped shingle the Hall barn, built in 1852. This barn still stands and has never been reshingled. The Wylie house, up the river three miles, was also built in 1852. This has been torn down within a few years. The Knowlton House, still on a few miles, was built by Mr. Loomis in 1853. At that time it was called Twin Island House. It still stands in a wonderful state of preservation. These three hotels between Stevens Point and Wausau were always found by the weary traveler and stage driver to be a restful welcome place, with every kind of hospitality extended. Mr. Elcock has watched the country grow and change from a handful of people and unbroken forests of thousands of acres of pine, hemlock and hardwood lands, the home of the numerous deer, bear, wolves and the many variety of birds, plentiful and undisturbed in this veritable home in the wilderness, into a section now teeming with almost every known rank of civilization, prosperity and enterprise known to man; where the mighty waterfall that the Indian with his light canoe navigated undisturbed and unknown, is now harnessed for the manufacturer of the various commodities that go to improve and fill the wants of this great, growing and prosperous country. It was here he watched the country grow and tower from infancy to strength and wonderous power; steadily followed out the masterpiece of man, who, through tired toil have become heroes of their clan.

DANCY.

Miss Jessie Lake was a Stevens Point visitor the past week.

John F. Mathie of Wausau was a Dancy caller a day recently.

Miss Bessie Lightfoot, our village teacher, will attend the teachers' convention at Eau Claire.

Robt. Kickbusch and wife and daughter Miss Nina, of Wausau, were callers in this village the past week.

The many friends of J. P. Malick in this vicinity were very sorry to hear of his serious illness at Stevens Point and all hope for his recovery.

Frank Glennon, John Martini, W. L. Bronson and John Peickert of Stevens Point enjoyed some of the pleasant fall days camping on the Wisconsin river at the Dubay landing.

The beautiful fall weather still continues, but the woods that have been brilliant in its coloring is beginning to take on a sombre hue, making one feel that old winter will be soon at hand.

E. D. Glennon, editor of The Gazette, one of the best papers in this part of the country, was a very welcome caller in Dancy last Saturday. Mr. Glennon made the trip overland and expressed himself as greatly surprised with the way the country is developing and building up through this locality.

Will LaCerte, Wausau's talented young vocalist, was a Saturday evening and Sunday guest at the home of G. G. Knoller. As a tenor singer Mr. LaCerte is not surpassed by any in this part of the country. During services at St. Frances Catholic church, Knowlton, last Sunday morning, he sang a sacred solo entitled "Just as I Am," in a way that was simply soul inspiring and brought tears to the eyes of many.

Last Sunday a large class of children received first holy communion at St. Frances Catholic church, Knowlton. Many were present from all over the country, of all creeds, and the crowd was so great that many were unable to gain admission to the church. Stevens Point, Wausau, Mosinee, Junction City and all the neighboring towns were well represented. Special music for the high mass was furnished by a choir composed of Will LaCerte of Wausau, Mesdames G. G. Knoller and M. H. Altenburg of Dancy. Mrs. Knoller as organist was assisted by her daughter, Evelyn. During the services the first communicants sang two selections very feelingly. Rev. F. Wojak, who has charge of this mission, is certainly deserving of great praise for the good work he is doing and the congregation he is building up. The children showed the careful training of a good, kind pastor.

LANARK.

Allan Barr, who moved to Spooner, Wis., is here caring for his potato crop. Chas. Atkinson went to Rusholt Sunday, where his career as wielder of the rod began this week.

Mrs. Frank Dreske and little son of Amherst visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. Moberg, Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Lynch and daughter, Katharine, of Amherst, visited friends in this place and attended services at St. Patrick's Sunday.

Frank Wisniewski of Casimir, who had been employed by L. P. Moberg, was called home Monday by the death of his little daughter.

Grandma Harris died Saturday night at the home of her son, at the advanced age of ninety-eight years. The remains were taken to Weyauwega for interment.

The statues of St. Peter and St. John which were donated to St. Patrick's church by the will of John Nelson, have been placed and are a pleasing addition to that edifice.

Patrons of the Lanark creamery will receive thirty-one and one-half cents per pound for butter this month. Mr. Sorenson is certainly a firstclass butter-maker and all hope to retain him indefinitely.

J. E. Malik was a businesse caller at Stevens Point Monday.

Miss Edith Empey went to Grand Rapids to visit relatives.

Miss Jennie Evans of Sherry spent Sunday with Martha Petersen.

Several of our boys attended the dance at Rudolph Monday night.

The Misses Hilda and Lottie Petersen were Stevens Point shoppers Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Swartzman and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop spent a few days at Stevens Point last week.

The Misses Lizzie and Loretta Farrell, who underwent successful operations for appendicitis at Green Bay, returned home Monday.

Mrs. P. J. Cress and her friend, Miss Cadet, visited the former's brother, Mr. Cronin at River Pines Sanatorium near Stevens Point Thursday.

A surprise party was given at the home of John Rudersdorf last Friday evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Cress. About fifty people were present and a pleasant evening spent by all. The occasion was a farewell as they left the next day for their new home at Ellsworth, Minn. A hand-painted china sugar bowl and creamer was given them as a token of remembrance. Dr. and Mrs. Cress have made hosts of friends during their year's stay among us and all were grieved to see them depart. That they may enjoy the best of success in their new home is the sincere wish of all.

FLOWER.

Our parochial school opened Monday morning.

M. F. Pierce made a business trip to Milwaukee Monday.

Potatoes coming to market are large, clean, dry, nice stock.

Landlord Chapel took in the sights at Abbotford Saturday.

Frank Herman of Abbotford spent Sunday at his home here.

Eighty degrees hot Monday. Guess Tuesday showed a little more.

Mrs. E. J. Youmans visited over Sunday with Mrs. Byron Rogers.

Mrs. F. E. Halladay will spend the next six weeks visiting her brother in Iowa.

Miss Ida Glover of Stevens Point visited at S. D. Clark's a few days last week.

Olaf Nahmens is the new assistant superintendent at the Carley ware house.

Work on B. F. Parker's new barn is progressing under the supervision of Julian Maxfield.

On account of the excellent pastures, our butter factory is turning out better than June butter.

We are glad to note that Miss Etta Bahner, who has been sick for some weeks, is much improved.

Mrs. H. A. Marlatt Sundayed at the old home in Knowlton, helping her mother cut her 74th birthday cake.

Dr. Arthur Metcalf, an old Portage county boy, but now located at Houghton, Mich., was on our streets Sunday.

Carrying coal to Newcastle may have been a joke, but what about our worthy Burgomaster importing sand to Plover?

E. H. Rosier and M. C. Skinner celebrated with their Masonic friends at Stevens Point last Friday evening.

Alex Tunks is confined to the house with rheumatism. Raymond Bushey is taking his place as janitor at the school house.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Maxfield returned home Saturday after enjoying a couple of weeks with their daughters at Minneapolis and Stanley.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Russell, with Russell Brothers Entertainers, went on the road again Monday. They will show first at Northport.

Barnsdale's moving pictures will be shown again Saturday night. All different pictures. Admission 5 and 10 cents. Two hours' show.

Barnsdale's moving pictures continue to draw crowded houses every Saturday evening at the Post Hall. They are to be seen again next Saturday evening.

L. L. Nelson, cashier of the Security bank at Amherst Junction, was looking after insurance business in the village Monday, having succeeded J. O. Foxen in that line.

Rev. Kumelin of Lawrence College preached in the M. E. church last Sunday morning. The service next Sunday will be conducted by Rev. Jennings, also from Lawrence.

G. W. Bushey will move this week into the house recently purchased from S. D. Clark. The house has been greatly improved by the addition of a stone basement, thoroughly remodeled inside, newly plastered and papered, making a very nice, convenient home.

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. F. E. Halladay Oct. 14th, when they held their annual business meeting. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Pres., Mrs. George Smart; vice pres., Mrs. F. E. Halladay; secretary, Miss Merle Harrou; treasurer, Mrs. A. Pitcher; collectors, Mrs. L. C. Beachard and Mrs. F. Bahner.

Good and Growing Country.

A drive over west and north through the towns of Carson and Eau Pleine, on a pleasant day, or any other day, will prove a pleasant surprise to anyone who has not been there before. The farmers in both towns raised excellent crops during the past summer, considering the dry season, and in Eau Pleine especially has the yield of corn, potatoes and other crops been abundant. The soil in that town is of a clay mixture, the people are thrifty and progressive, and some of the neatest and most inviting farm homes are to be found there, while the spacious modern barns and other buildings proclaim an air of undoubted prosperity.

Passing through Eau Pleine, north to Dancy and thence to Knowlton, one visits an excellent part of the country adjacent to Stevens Point, populated by a good and gracious people.

Settled Out of Court.

Aug. Goerke of this city, John Poineck and John Bekowski, who live a few miles out of town, are owners of marsh and timber lands which were badly damaged by fires alleged to have been set by sparks from locomotives on the Soo line. The three parties commenced actions for damages against the railroad company and the cases were to be tried in circuit court, but through their attorney, A. L. Smogoski, a satisfactory settlement was made this week.

The Gazette is not disposed to question the justice of a majority of the supreme court in declaring the obnoxious 20 per cent. law unconstitutional, thereby practically disfranchising thousands of voters and citizens of this state, but it believes that Chief Justice Winslow and Justice Timlin exercised commendable wisdom in dissenting to the opinion.

Mrs. Guy Lippincott, nineteen years old, died at Rock Island, Ill., from blood poisoning, resulting from the bite of a rat a year ago.

Lee Wilson, a wealthy farmer living south of Des Moines, Ia., shot and killed himself, after firing five shots into the body of Claude Masters, a dairyman. Masters is dying in the hospital as a result of his injuries. Jealousy is said to have been the cause.

David B. Hill lies in Wolfert's Roost, Elmira, N. Y., on what his friends fear is his death bed. The former governor and former United States senator was taken down with a recurrence of his old kidney trouble. The report is that pneumonia has set in, making a complication that is likely to prove fatal.

Michael P. Heney, the millionaire railroad contractor of Seattle, is dead at San Francisco. He neglected himself to care for shipwrecked women and children when the Ohio sank off the coast of Alaska in August, 1909.

Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, chief of coast artillery, urges in his annual report that the government increase its detail of artillery troops for coast duty.

GENERAL NEWS.

From the West Indies to the Florida coast, throughout the region of the Tortugas and from the Florida coast to Mexico in the gulf the seas are in the grasp of a hurricane which is striking terror to the hearts of the people of the whole immense area.

Charles Albright, manager, and three employees of the Sebring Brothers' Pottery company, were killed when a freight car on the Stark Electric railroad hit the automobile in which they were riding near Sebring, O.

The steamship Cranford has been lost in gale in the North sea and it is feared all sixty-three persons on board perished. Twenty-five bodies were washed ashore.

The French steamer Ville de Rochefort was wrecked off Noirmoutiers Islands. The British steamer Fervill picked up the first and second mates and the chief steward of the French craft, but the 23 others of her crew were lost.

A hurricane swept the eastern coast of the Baltic sea causing many wrecks and the loss of hundreds of lives among the sailors.

Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, sailed his Farman biplane over the city of Washington from Bennington and paid a social call to the army and navy officials landing near the White House.

A table compiled by New York customs officials shows that the anti-smuggling crusade of the last two years has caused the amount of duties collected to be nearly trebled.

While hastening homeward in an automobile, following a campaign tour through Placer county, California, Hiram W. Johnson, Republican candidate for governor of California, and a party were halted by motorcycle policemen and Mr. Johnson's son was placed under arrest on a charge of speeding.

The United States, the greatest cotton-producing country of the world, imported in the fiscal year 1910-86, 037,691 pounds of raw cotton, valued at $15,816,138, the second largest year's importation of cotton in the history of the country.

The United States embassy in Paris was endangered when a powerful dynamite bomb was placed near the building, but was discovered and removed in time to prevent an explosion. The police attribute the attempted outrage to anarchists, who sought to put new life into the apparently dying railroad strike.

The French government is meeting the situation resulting from the general strike of railroad employees with a firmness that challenges the administration even of those who sympathize with the men in their demands for a minimum wage of $1 a day. Five of the most influential strike leaders have been placed under arrest.

President Taft assisted Boston in the observation of the first formal recognition of Columbus day, by reviewing with Governor Draper the big military and civic procession in that city. For an hour and a half the president stood on his lame foot and watched the 52,000 enthusiastic paraders march past. Then he was compelled to give up.

Another great slide has developed in the east bank of the Culebra cut of the Panama canal at Bas Obispo, where a quantity of rock estimated at 75,000 cubic yards is slowly moving toward the canal prism. This slide is 95 feet above the sea level and the break follows the lines of a fault in the rock.

An order has been issued at Palmer, Mass., that there shall be no more tub bathing until the town increases its water supply by means of artesian wells.

DOLLIVER CALLED BY DEATH IN IOWA HOME

Progressive Republican Senator Passes Away Suddenly of Dilatation of the Heart—His Vitality Was Weakened by Campaign in Wisconsin—Gave Life for His Country—Was Famed as an Orator.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—United States Senator Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver died suddenly Saturday night at his residence while being treated by an osteopathic physician.

The cause of death was dilatation of the heart, due directly to an attack of acute indigestion. It had been believed that he had almost entirely recovered from the attack of indigestion from which he had been suffering for a week, but his exertions in the political campaign had weakened his vitality.

Physician Hears End Come.

While working over the senator the physician, Dr. E. M. Van Patton, used an instrument to listen to the heart action. He had counted 14 regular strokes and had informed his patient

Two more strong heartbeats were recorded and then two faint ones. Then the physician heard nothing. He thought for an instant that his stethoscope was faulty. He glanced up and discovered that his patient was dead.

It was learned that a consultation of physicians was held a week ago. The decision then was that the senator might prolong his life by relinquishing his work, but that he never again would speak in the senate or thrill an audience from public platform.

Gave Life to Country.

Dr. A. H. McCraight, one of the consulting physicians, declared to Mrs.

declaring, however, that the senator must give up his public work.

He himself repeatedly said that he was not seriously ill, declaring that if he were he would "set the wolves howling" and admitting that he had a horror of knowing that the politicians were discussing his successor while he was ill, on the theory that he might die.

Talk of Successor.

Nevertheless, within an hour after the senator's death, the question of who his successor would be was the theme of general discussion in political circles. It is predicted that Governor

Carroll will not appoint any person to fill the vacancy, for the legislative about to be elected will convene within eight of ten weeks. Governor

Carroll is a candidate for re-election, and it is believed by many that he will leave it to the legislature to fill the vacancy.

Dolliver's Life Story.

Jonathan P. Dolliver was born in 1858 near Kingwood, Preston county,

W. Va. He was the son of a minister in the mountain district. He had to pay part of his own way through West

Virginia university because his circuit riding father's income was small.

At seventeen, when the boy had won his graduation diploma, he began the study of law and was admitted to the bar on coming of age.

Fame as an Orator.

It was in 1884 that Mr. Dolliver first achieved national fame as an orator.

He made a speech at the Republican state convention as temporary chairman. His speech was printed in full and was widely copied all over the country and even in England, where it was cited as a rare specimen of mingled wit and power and condensed oratory in political speaking.

Wins Leadership in Congress.

Mr. Dolliver was elected to the Fifty-first congress from the Tenth Iowa district and was five times re-elected.

Easily his oratory and strong mental-powers, undermining his naturally rugged constitution.

Death cut short Mr. Dolliver's plans to help Senator Beveridge in the Indiana campaign and to aid Senator

Clapp in Minnesota. At the state convention he declared he would enter every one of the 99 counties in Iowa, whether invited or not, to speak in support of the state ticket. He met

Colonel Roosevelt at Omaha on the latter's recent western trip and accompanied the former president to Sioux

City. From there he returned to Fort

Dodge. It was his last campaign work.

Believed He Would Recover.

During his illness the senator and his wife insisted that there was nothing serious in his ailment, and the physicians expressed the same belief.

Happenings of Interest Throughout the State Put in Condensed Form

Fond du Lac.—At the concluding session of the grand encampment of the I. O. O. F. Lancaster was selected for the 1911 meeting and officers were elected as follows: Grand chief patriarch, A. J. Caldwell, Oconomowoc; high priest, T. Longwell, Sparta; senior warden, H. H. Rogers, Appleton; grand scribe, J. A. Fathers, Janesville; grand treasurer, L. F. Theisen, Oshkosh; grand warden, J. Clark, Superior; grand representative, J. W. Salter, Unity, and grand trustee, Haywood Wright, Madison.

Chippewa Falls.—With a pearl worth $850, Messrs. W. L. Carnegie and C. A. Land have returned to their homes near this city after spending the summer at fishing for pearls along the Mississippi River and its tributaries. They left her on June 1. Considerable time was devoted to the Cedar river, Iowa. In addition to the big pearl they found six pearls valued at from $50 to $75, $150 worth of small ones and an assortment of slugs worth a total of $180.

Madison.—Bidding good-by to freedom forever, Mrs. Theresa Steinhausen of this county was sentenced by Judge James O'Neill of the circuit court to one year in the state prison for the larceny of a watch. Holly McCullum and Frank Clement, Juneau county, each received a four-year sentence in state prison for placing a coal box weighing about 800 pounds upon the railroad track near Mauston. Madison.—Colonel A. G. Weissert, head of the Vicksburg monument commission, notified Capt. H. W. Rod of the state G. A. R. headquarters here that the day for dedicating the monument had been postponed indefinitely from October 19. A defective stone in the foundation is said to be the cause.

Fond du Lac.—John Durst of North Fond du Lac, a conductor on the Soo line, was badly injured when time freight No. 21 dashed into the rear of an extra freight near Rugger junction. The caboose of the extra and the engine of No. 21 were demolished.

Fond du Lac.—Albert Werth, thirty-three years old, proprietor of the Werth hotel, is dead after a long illness. He is survived by his wife and four children. He spent the greater part of his life in Oconto.

Black River.—Frank Williams of this county was sentenced by Judge James O'Neill of the circuit court to one year in the state prison for larceny of a watch. Holly McCullum and Frank Clement, Juneau county, each received a four-year sentence in state prison for placing a coal box weighing about 800 pounds upon the railroad track near Mauston. SYNOPSIS.

At a private view of the Chatworth ring, known as the Crew Idol, mysteriously disappears. Harry Cressy, who was present, describes the ring to his fiancee, Flora Gilsey, and her chaperon, Mrs. Clara Britton, as being like a living jewel with a beautiful sapphire set in the head. Flora meets Mr. Kerr, an Englishman, at the club. In discussing the disappearance of the ring, the exploits of an English thief, Farrell Ward, are recalled. Flora has a fancy that Harry and Kerr know something about the mystery. Kerr tells Flora that he is not Harry, she having been the place where Harry was reported for the return of the ring. Harry admits to Flora that he dislikes Kerr. Harry takes Flora to a Chinese goldsmith's to buy an engagement ring. An exquisite sapphire set in a loop of brass, is selected. Harry urges her not to wear it until it is returned. The possession of the ring seems to give him a thrill. She takes money and disappears. Flora meets Kerr at a box party. She is startled by the effect on him when he sees a glimpse of the sapphire. The possibility that the stone is part of the Crew Idol causes Flora much anxiety. Unseen, Flora discovers Clara unscrewing her dressing room. Flora resists the urge of telling the truth. Flora's interest in Kerr increases. She decides to return the ring to Harry, but tells her to keep it for a day or two. Ella Buller tells Flora that Clara is setting her cap for her father, Judge Buller.

"Well, I'll let you know if it makes any difference," said Ella hopefully.

Flora knew that nothing either of them could say would make any difference to Clara, or turn her from the thing she was pursuing; but by speaking she might at least find out if Judge Buller himself were really her object.

The bells and whistles of one o'clock were making clangor as she ran up the steps of her house again. In the hall Shima presented her with a card. She looked at it with a quickening pulse. "Is he waiting?"

"No, madam. Mr. Kerr has gone. He waited half an hour."

Down went her spirits again. Yet surely after their last interview she ought not to be eager to meet him again. "In the morning," she thought, "and waited half an hour. How he must have wanted to see me!" She didn't know whether she liked that or not. "When did he come?"

"At 11 o'clock."

At this she was frightened; he had missed Harry by less than half an hour.

"He waited all that time alone?"

"No. Mr. Cressy came."

Flora felt a cold thrill in her nerves. Then Harry had come back! What had he come for?

"He also would wait," the Japanese explained.

Flora gasped. "They waited together!"

The Japanese shook his head. "They went away together."

She didn't believe her ears. "Mr. Kerr went away with Mr. Cressy."

The Japanese seemed to revolve the problem of mastery. "No, Mr. Cressy accompanied Mr. Kerr." He had made a delicate oriental distinction. It put the whole thing before her in a moment. Harry had been the resolute, and the other with his brilliant initiative attacking, always attacking when he should have been hiding, had carried him off. What had he done, and how had he managed, when Harry must have had such pressing reasons for wanting to stay? Ah, she knew only too well Kerr's exquisite knowledge of managing; but why must he make such a reckless exposure of himself? Did he suppose Harry was to be managed? Had he no idea where Harry stood in this affair? In pity's name, didn't he know that Harry had seen him before—had seen him under circumstances of which Harry wouldn't talk?

CHAPTER XV.

A Lady in Distress.

She had returned, ready for pitched battle with Clara, and on the threshold there had met her the very turn in the tide that she had dreaded all along—the setting of Kerr and Harry upon each other.

There were two whom she had kept apart even in her mind—the man to whom she was pledged, with whom she had supposed herself in love, and the man for whom she was flying in the face of all her traditions. She had not scrutinized the reason of her extraordinary behavior; not since that dreadful day when the vanishing mystery had taken positive form in him had she dared to think how she felt about Kerr. She had only acted, acted only asked herself what to do next, and never why; only taken his cause upon herself and made it her own, as if that was her natural right. She could hardly believe that it was she who had let herself go to this extent. All her life she had been dedicated to public opinion, bowing to conventions, respectful of those legal and moral rules laid down by some rigid material spirit lurking in mankind. But now when the moment had come, when the responsibility had descended upon her, she found that these things had in no way persuaded her.

Then this was herself, a creature too much concerned with the primal harmonies of life to be impressed by the modulations her decade set upon them. This was that self which she had obscurely cherished as no more than a fairy; but at Kerr's acclamation it had proclaimed itself more real than flesh and blood, and Kerr himself the most real thing in all her life.

Then what was Harry? The bland implacable pronouncement of Shima had summoned him up to stand beside Kerr more clearly than her own eyes could have shown him.

Kerr, with his brilliant initiative, might carry him off, but Kerr was still the quarry. For had not Harry, from the very beginning, known something about him? Hadn't he at first denied having seen him before, and then admitted it? Hadn't he dropped hints and innuendos without ever an explanation? She remembered the singular fact of the embassy ball, twice mentioned, each time with that singular name of Farrell Ward. And to know—if that was what Harry knew—that a man of such fame was in a community where a ring of such fame had disappeared—what further proof was wanted?

Then why didn't Harry speak? And what was going on on his side of the affair? Harry's side would have been her side a few days before. Now, unaccountably, it was not. Nor was Kerr's side hers either. She was standing between the two—standing, hesitating between her love of one, and her loyalty to the other and what he represented. The power might be hers to tip the scales Harry held, either to Kerr's undoing, or to his protection. At least she thought she might protect him, if she could discover Harry's secret. Her special, authorized relation to him—her right to see him often, question him freely—even cajole—should make that easy. But she shrank from what seemed like betrayal, even though she did not betray him to Kerr by name.

Then, on the other hand, she doubted how much she could do with Harry. She wasn't sure how far she was prepared to try him after that scene of theirs. She had no desire to puzzle him further by seeing too much of Kerr. On her own account she wanted for the present to avoid Kerr. He roused a feeling in her that she feared—a feeling intoxicating to the senses, dazzling to the mind, unknotting to the will. How could she tell, if they were left alone, that she might not take the jewel from her neck, and him further by seeing too much of Kerr. She had not forgotten? They were going to that dinner—and then the reception afterward? Her suspicion that he was deliberately dodging wavered before his boyish, cheerful, unconscious face. And yet, following on the heels of his tendency to question and coerce her, this reticence was amazing. The next day would be lost with Harry beyond reach—12 hours while Kerr was at the mercy of chance, and she was at the mercy of Kerr.

Yet when his card was brought up to her the next morning she looked at the printed name as wistfully as if it had been his face. It cost an effort to send down the cold fiction that she was not at home, and she could not deny herself the consolation of leaning on the baluster of the second landing, and listening for his step in the hall below. But there was no movement. Could it be possible he was waiting for her to come in? Hush! that was the drawing-room door. But instead of Kerr, Shima emerged. She was heading for the stairs with his little silver tray and upon it—a note. Oh, impudence! How dared he give her the lie, by the hand of her own butler! She stood her ground, and Shima delivered the missive as if it were most usual to find one's mistress befooled in peignoir and petticoats hanging breathless over the baluster.

She heard the wheels of Clara's departing conveyance. Now was her chance for an interview with Harry. She spent 20 minutes putting together three sentences that would not arouse his suspicions. She made two copies, and sent them by separate messengers, one to his rooms, one to the club, with orders they be brought back if he was not there to receive them. Then—the business of waiting in the large house full of echoes and the round ghostly globes of electric lights, with that thing around her neck for which—did they but know of it—half the town would break in her windows and doors.

The wind rattled the streets without, and shook the window casings. She covered over the library fire, listening. The leaping flames set her shadow dancing like a goblin. A bell rang, and the shadow and the flame gave a higher leap as if in welcome of what had arrived. She went to the library door. In the glooms and lights outside Shima was standing, and two messengers. It was odd that both should arrive at once. She stepped back and stood waiting with a quicker pulse. Shima entered with two letters upon his tray. She had a moment's anxiety lest both her notes had been brought back to her, but no—the envelope which lay on top showed Harry's writing. She tore it open hastily. Harry wrote that he would be delighted, and might he bring a friend with him; a billy fellow whom he wanted her to meet? He added she might send over for some girl and they could have a jolly little party.

Flora looked at this communication blankly. Was Harry, who had always faltered at the chance of a tête-à-tête, dodging her? In her astonishment she let the other envelope fall. She stooped, and then for a moment remained thus, bent above it. The superscription was not hers. The note was not addressed to Harry, but to her, and in a handwriting she had never seen before!

Again the peal of the electric bell. Shima appeared with a third envelope. This time it was her own note returned to her. With the feeling she was bewitched she took up the mysterious letter from the floor and opened it. She read the strange handwriting:

"Take that back," she said coldly, "and tell him that I am out; and, Shima,"—she addressed the man's intelligence—"make him understand it."

She watched the note departing.

How she longed to call Shima back and open it! There was a pause—then Kerr emerged from the drawing-room. As he crossed the hall he glanced up at the stair and as much as was visible of the landing. He had not taken Shima's word for it, after all!

The vestibule door closed noiselessly after him, the outer door shut with a heavy sound. Yet before that sound had ceased to vibrate, she heard it shut again. Was he coming back? There was a presence in the vestibule very vaguely seen through the glass and lace of the inner door. Her heart beat with apprehension. The door opened upon Clara.

Flora precipitately retreated. She was more disturbed than relieved by the unexpected appearance. For Clara must have seen Kerr leave the house. Three times now within three days he had been found with her or waiting for her. She wondered if Clara would ask her awkward questions. But Clara, when she entered Flora's dressing-room a few moments later with the shopping-list, instead of a question, offered a statement.

"I don't like than man," she announced.

"Who?"

"That Kerr. I met him just now on the steps. Don't you feel there is something wrong about him?"

"Oh, I don't know," said Flora vaguely.

Clara gave her a bright glance.

"But you weren't at home to him."

"I'm not at home to any one this morning." Flora answered evasively, feeling the probe of Clara's eyes. "I'm feeling ill. I'm not going out this evening, either. I think I'll ring up Burlingame and tell Harry." It was in her mind that she might manage to make him stay with her while Clara went on to the reception.

"Burlingame! Harry!" Clara echoed in surprise. "Why, he's in town. I saw him just now as I was coming up."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes. He was walking up Clay from Kearney. I was in the car."

"Why that—that is—" Flora stammered in her surprise. "Then something must have kept him," she altered her sentence quickly. But though this seemed the probable explanation she did not believe it. Harry walking toward Chinatown, when he had told her distinctly he would be in Burlingame! She thought of the goldsmith shop and there returned to the memory of how Harry and the blue-eyed Chinaman had looked when she had turned from the window and seen them standing together in the back of the shop.

"You do look ill," Clara remarked. "Why don't you stay in bed and not try to see any one?"

Flora murmured that that was her intention, but she was far from speaking the truth. She only waited to make sure of Clara's being in her own rooms to get out of the house and telephone to Harry.

It was not far to the nearest booth, a block or two down the cross street. She rang, first, the office. The word came back promptly in his partner's voice. He had gone to Burlingame by the early train. It was the same at the club. He must be in town, then, on secret business.

She walked rapidly, in her excitement, turning the troubling question over in her mind. She did not realize how far she had gone until some girl she knew, passing and nodding to her, called her out of her reverie. She was almost in front of the University club. A few blocks more and she would be in the shopping district. She hesitated, then decided that it would be better to walk a little further and take a cross-town car.

A group of men was leaving the club. Two lingered on the steps, the other coming quickly out. At sight of him, she averted her face, and, hurrying, turned the corner and walked down a block. Her heart was beating rapidly. What if he had seen her! She looked about—there was no cab in sight—the best thing to do was to slip into one of the crowded shops, full of women, and wait until the danger had passed. Once inside the door of the nearest, she felt herself, with relief, only one of a horde of pricers, lookers and buyers. She felt as if she had lost her identity. She went to the nearest counter and asked for veils. Partly concealed behind the bulk of the woman next her, she kept her eye on the door. She saw Kerr come in. How absurd to think that she could escape him! She turned her back and waited a moment or two, still hoping he might pass her by. Then she heard his voice behind her:

"Well, this is luck!"

She was conscious of giving him a limp hand. He sat down on the vacant stool next her, laughing.

"You are a most remarkably fast walker," he observed.

"I had to buy a veil," Flora murmured.

"Has it taken you all the morning?"

She could see she had not fooled him.

"I had a great many other things to do." She was resolved not to admit anything.

"No doubt, but I wanted to see you very much last night, and again this morning. I may see you this evening, perhaps?" He was grave now. She saw that he awaited her answer in anxiety.

"But—" she hesitated just a moment too long before she added, "I'm going out this evening."

She started nervously to rise.

"Wait," he said in a voice that was audible to the shop-girl, "your package has not come."

She looked at him helplessly, so attractive and so inimical to her. He swung around, back to the counter, and lowered his voice. "Did you know I called upon you yesterday morning, where she stood was a small red lounging-room, walls, floor and furniture all covered with crimson velvet. It had a third door which communicated indirectly with the reception-rooms, by means of a little hall. She was near that hall, and it would be the work of a moment to slip by way of it into the red room and stop Harry on his way through. She had not played at such a game since, as a child, she had jumped out on people from dark closets, and Harry was as much astonished as she could remember they had been.

"That's a reticent friend of yours!" The exclamation, and the truth of it, put her on her guard.

"I can't discuss him with you," she said coldly.

"Yet no doubt you have discussed me with him?"

"Never!"

"You haven't told him anything?" The incredulity, the amazement of his face put before her, for the first time, how extraordinary her conduct must seem. What could he think of her? What construction would he put upon it? She blushed, neck to forehead, and her voice was scarcely audible as she answered "No."

But at that small word his whole mood warmed to her. "Why, then," he began eagerly, "if Cressy doesn't know?"

"Oh, but he—" Flora stopped in terror of herself. "I can't talk of him, I must not. Don't ask me!" she implored, "and please, please don't come to my house again!"

He gave his head a puzzled, impatient shake. "Then where am I to see you?"

"In a few days—perhaps to-morrow I will let you know." She rose. She had her package now. She was getting back her courage. There was no further way of keeping her.

But he followed her closely through the crowd to the door. "Yes," he said quickly under his breath, "in a few days, perhaps to-morrow, as soon as you get rid of it, you won't mind meeting me! What are you afraid of? Surely not of me?"

She was, but hotly denied it.

"I am not afraid of you. I am afraid of them!"

"Of them!" He peered at her.

"What are you talking about now?"

Ah, she had said too much! She bit her lip. They had reached the corner, and the gliding cable car was approaching. She turned to him with a last appeal.

"Don't ask me anything! Don't come with me! Don't follow me!"

Not until she was safely inside the car did she dare look back at him. He was still on the corner, and he raised his hat and smiled so reassuringly that she was half-way home before she realized that, in spite of all she had urged upon him, he had not committed himself to any promise. And yet, she thought in dismay, he had almost made her give away Harry's confidence. She was seeing more and more clearly that this was the danger of meeting him. He always got something out of her and never, by chance, gave her anything in return. If he should seek her to-night she dared not be at home! Any place would be safer than her own house. It would be better to fulfill her engagement and go to the reception with Clara and Harry. That was a house Kerr did not know.

It was awkward to have to announce this sudden change of plan after her pretenses of the morning, but of late she had lived too constantly with danger for Clara's uplifted eyebrows to daunt her. The mere trivial act of being dressed each day was fraught with danger. To get the sash off her person before Marrika should appear; to put it back somehow after Marrika had done; to shift it from one place to another as she wore gowns cut high or low—and every moment in fear lest she be discovered in the act! This was her daily maneuver. Tonight she clasped the chain around her waist beneath her petticoats.

She was ready early, in the hope that Harry might come, as he had been wont to do, a little before the appointed hour. But he turned up without a moment to spare. Clara was downstairs in her cloak when he appeared. There was no chance for a word at dinner. But if she could not manage it later in the wider field of the reception, why, then she deserved to fail in everything.

But she found, upon their arrival, that even this was going to be hard to bring about. For she was immediately pounced upon—first, by Ella Buller.

"Why, Flora," at the top of her voice, "where have you been all these days?" Then in a hot whisper: "Did you speak to her? It hasn't done one bit of good."

"I think you are mistaken," Flora murmured

Dynamiter, Himself a Married Man, Knew What Awaited Forgetful Husband.

The business man was sitting in his office, thinking of starting for home, when a suspicious looking person came in with a leather bag in his hand.

"If you don't give me $25," said the visitor, coming at once to the point, "I will drop this on the floor."

The business man was cool. "What is in it?" he asked.

"Dynamite," was the brief reply.

"What will it do if you drop it?"

"Blow you up."

"Drop it!" was the instant command. "My wife told me when I left home this morning to be sure and send up a bag of flour, and I forgot it. I guess it will take just about as much dynamite as you have there to prepare me for the blowing up I'll get when she sees me!"

He threw himself back in his chair and waited for the explosion, but it did not come.

"I'm a married man myself," said the dynamiter, and quietly slipped out. —Illustrated Bits.

History of Red Cross Seal.

"Charity stamps," first used in Boston in 1862 for the soldiers' relief funds during the Civil war, were the original forerunners of the Red Cross Christmas seal, which will be used this year to bring happiness and cheer to millions. The Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis society in 1907 for the first time in America used a stamp for the purpose of getting revenue to fight consumption. In a hastily organized campaign of only three weeks they realized $3,000. The next year, 1908, the American Red Cross conducted the first national tuberculosis stamp campaign. From this sale $135,000 was realized for the anti-tuberculosis movement. In 1909, under many adverse conditions, $250,000 was realized from these stamps. This year the slogan of the tuberculosis fighters and the Red Cross is "A Million for Tuberculosis From Red Cross Seals in 1910."

He Knew. A small boy brought up by a fire-eating father to hate anything connected with England or the English was consigned recently to eat dinner with the nurse while the family entertained a genuine English lord in the dining room. The grown-ups' meal had come to that "twenty minutes past" stage where conversation halts directly, when a childish treble fell upon the dumb-waiter shaft from the kitchen. This is what the astonished nobleman heard:

"Fe, fi, fo, fum,

"I smell the blood of an Englishman." —Wasp.

FARROWING OR PASTURE PEN

Illustration Shows Such a Structure That Answers Requirements in Ideal Manner.

Mr. Walter S. Prickett, manager and owner of the Roycroft farm at Sidnaw, Mich., has a farrowing pen which answers the requirements of such a structure in an ideal manner. He calls it the "Berkshire bungalow."

Farrowing or Pasture Pen.

It would certainly be hard to surpass the Roycroft plan for attractiveness and general usefulness. The accompanying drawing indicates the general plan of the cot. The dimensions of all cots are so near standard that it will hardly necessitate the repetition of these figures here. The main points of difference in the "bungalow" as compared with other pens are:

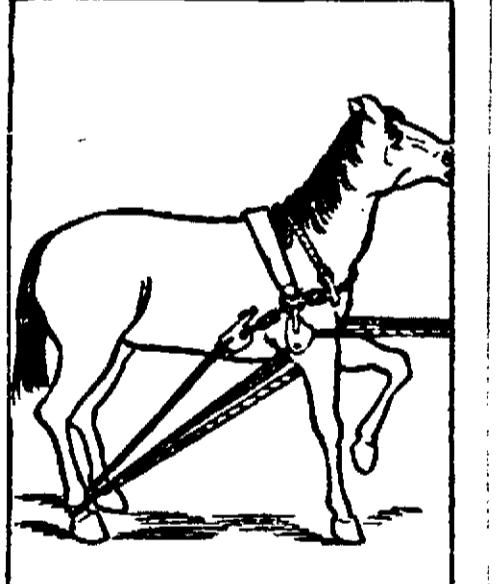

The center board on each side are hinged so that they can be swung open in hot weather; the ridge cap is so mounted that it can be raised and lowered at will, thus further assisting in the ventilation of the pen and the roof boards are made into panels which may be raised or lowered over a window frame which is in place just below them. This last arrangement permits of making the pen into a hothouse whenever desired. The pen certainly has about as many adjustments on it as one could wish for.

It is, moreover, one of the most attractive pens built. Its main objection is perhaps that the cost of construction is somewhat higher than is the case with more simple and less convenient types.

CURING HORSE OF KICKING

Harness Devised by Two Missouri Men Teaches Animal Futility of Trying for Own Way.

Sooner or later domesticated animals learn that they cannot have their own way, but must bow to the law of humans. Every once in awhile, however, there is born a horse who thinks he is entitled to his own opinion, and his favorite way of asserting himself is in kicking the dashboard to bits. Two Missouri men have devised a harness which is warranted to cure this habit.

Straps cross the horse's back and breast and at their junctions are fastened the ends of ropes which engage the fetlocks of the animal's hind legs in running loops. The other end of the ropes are fastened to staples in the horse's stall or to some other stationary object in front of which he is tied. The result is that when a horse is trussed up in this manner, if he tries to kick he finds he cannot get his hind feet beyond a certain point, and after making a number of ineffectual efforts he becomes discouraged. If he is a particularly bad kicker he can be goaded into making these attempts until his spirit is broken in that respect.

Care of Horses.

As the busy season closes and the horses are idle more of the time, give them less grain feed and only twice each day, while they are not working. Give all of the horses the run of some field or pasture when they are idle. The exercise and fresh air alone will do them good. The horse, above all other domestic animals, needs abundance of exercise to harden the muscles.

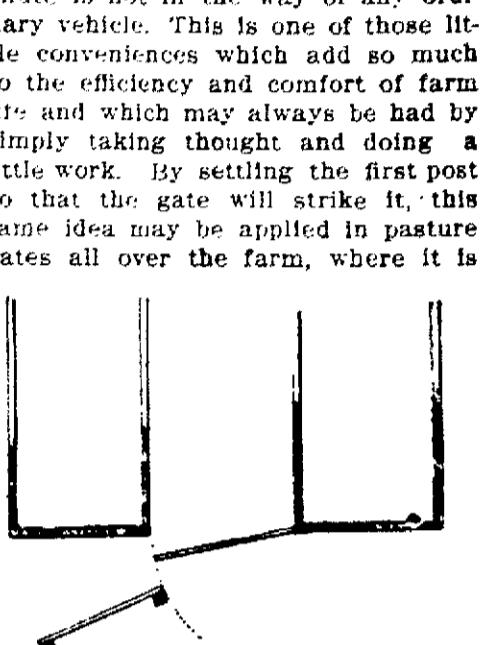

Barley for Hogs.

Canadian experimenters have found that barley is the best grain for finishing the prime bacon hog. As long as bacon hogs are not selling as high as fat hogs in this country, however, our feeders will stick to corn. It's good enough for the market hog, and it makes him good enough for the market.

EASY WAY TO HANDLE HOGS

Kansas Man Has Excellent Plan for Transferring Animals From One Pasture to Another.

Herewith is a drawing showing the handy way by which Mr. D. W. Evans of Fairview, Kan., handles his hogs in transferring them from one lot to another. The drawing is intended to show the barn, on one side of which is arranged the stalls for the live stock and on the other the grain bins with a passageway between the two. In the rear of this barn he has a number of swine pens and at the right of the front of it his hog house. As shown by the drawing, he has built a chute in front of the barn which connects with the hog house and which is opened or closed by the barn door. Only two posts are shown in the chute, as this is enough to show the idea. The curved line is intended to show the swing of the door. When the chute is in use for transferring of the hogs from the hog house to the feed lots in the rear of the main barn, or for transferring brood sows from the field to the farrowing pens, the barn gate is attached to the posts at the end of the chute by a chain, which is provided with a simple attachment for fastening. If it is desired to drive a team through the barn, the door is swung clear and the chute is not in the way of any ordinary vehicle. This is one of those little conveniences which add so much to the efficiency and comfort of farm life and which may always be had by simply taking thought and doing a little work. By settling the first post so that the gate will strike it, this same idea may be applied in pasture gates all over the farm, where it is desirable for persons to pass without allowing stock to get through. Such a gate will need no latch as it will strike against the post on either side and admit of the passage of any one without allowing even a pig to get by.

To Transfer Hogs.

Weaning the Colt.

The spring colt should now be weaned. The job will be an easy one if the young animal has previously been taught to eat grain. Keep it in a stall by itself with hay in the manner and feed it oats with bran, moistened, two or three times each day. A little corn may be given, but the oats and bran will come nearer supplying the lack of the mother's milk. Look after the mare carefully for at least two weeks after the colt is weaned, milking her just enough at a time to relieve her. Milk her the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night, with two or three milkings during the day for the first few days.

Working Heavy Teams.

Heavy draft teams hauling heavy loads keep in good condition when kept at the fast walking gait, and accomplish more than when trotted part of the time.

Prudent Bridegroom.

"The uncertainties of life in New York are reflected in wedding rings," said the jeweler. "Of all the wedding rings I have sold this season more than half were brought back after the ceremony to have the date put on. The rest of the inscription was engraved when the ring was purchased, but in order that the date might be correct it was cautiously omitted until after the knot was tied."

The bacon hog is growing in popularity every day.

Hurdle the lambs on the rape patch to push their growth.

Salt is one of the essentials of success in handling sheep.

It is a serious loss to let a colt run down at weaning time.

One way to improve land rapidly is to pasture hogs upon it.

The sheep bites close, and will eat weeds down to the roots.

Constant care is what develops the pigs into market toppers.

There is more profit in a grunting pig than in a squealing one.

Sheep return to the soil 80 per cent of fertility from the food eaten.

The mutton produced by the Cherokees is of a very superior quality.

Horses working hard in the harvest fields need water several times a day.

Those who have been raising sheep in recent years have had no reason to complain.

Goats will breed at six months of age, but this early breeding destroys vitality. Eighteen months is about the right age for breeding.

One reason why the breed has not made more headway is the fact that breeders charge prices much too high for the experimenting farmer.

The buck should be removed from the does as soon as the breeding season is over and confined in a field by himself. He must be well fed at all times.

Hogs are still high, and all other farm animals are bringing such prices that the farmer who can should make all of them do their best and grow more of them.

The high price of hogs should not tempt any farmer to go into the hog-raising business beyond his means.

While prices may continue high, the crop during the next two or three years will be greatly increased by thousands of plowing farmers who will rush into the business.

A RARE SHEEP OPPORTUNITY

Enormous Receipts at Market—Farmers and Sheep Feeders Can Stock Up at Bargain Prices.

CAUSES OF THE RUN.

200,000 sheep and lambs received in three days—such, in round numbers, is the record-breaking run thus far this week on the Chicago market!

This enormous over-marketing of sheep is the result of temporary and peculiar causes, and offers a rare opportunity for farmers and sheep feeders to stock up at bargain prices.

This great rush of sheep to market comes mainly from Montana and adjoining western range country, and cannot last more than two or three weeks longer.

It is no evidence of over-production. Its principal causes are the recent drought, which so burned out the grass that there will be very little winter feed on the range, and which prevented the putting up of sufficient hay to carry any considerable number of sheep over winter, while last winter was a very severe one and hay was so closely fed that there is no old hay left over for the purpose. The consequence is that sheep owners are forced to market the bulk of their sheep this fall, or else lose them in the fierce storms of winter.

The most serious cause of the present general liquidation, however, is the restriction of the range through occupation and fencing by dry farmers, who are grain growers, and not live stock raisers. The tremendous rush of these settlers upon the range within the last three years, and especially within the last twelve months, is hard for eastern people to realize.

It is not alone the area actually enclosed by these settlers, but the breaking up thereby of vast regions of grazing lands into such small sections that they are no longer available to stockmen for grazing their flocks, which is one of the main reasons why the sheep supplies of the western range country are being more closely marketed this year than ever before in the history of the trade.

This means an inevitable shortage at market later on and next year, and with constantly growing demand for both mutton and wool, it would seem that future good prices are assured.

The western range country has heretofore been the chief source of sheep market supplies, but unless the farmers of the corn belt begin at once to raise many more sheep than they have ever done before, there will be a great scarcity of both mutton and wool before long in this country.

Moreover, there is a world shortage of live stock of all kinds. All Europe is short of sheep, and even Australia's supply is declining with rapidity. The same general causes that exist in this country are operating in other countries also. Populations are growing rapidly everywhere, while grazing areas are being reduced. As pasture land is turned to production of cereals, sheep raising declines.

Thousands of American farmers can turn this situation to their benefit, through increase of both soil fertility and money profit, by beginning right now each to keep a small flock of sheep upon his farm. And by taking advantage of the present opportunity to buy healthy, thrifty, growing western range sheep at bargain prices up on the heavily supplied Chicago market, they can stock up at minimum cost, whether they want foundation stock for breeding or the growing kind to fatten for market.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

DARING YOUNG SKY PILOT

Walter Richard Brookins, the youthful sky pilot who made the successful flight from Chicago to Springfield, belongs in the aviation game by right of having been born in the city Wright brothers have given such great fame. He is a Dayton, Ohio, boy, who has been over a great deal of America and Canada, having been for a time a driver of racing automobiles before taking up all flying.

Brookins is just past twenty-two years old. He observed his last birthday July 11 by making record flights at Atlantic City, N. J. It was at this meet that he broke the then world record for high flight for the third time by driving his machine in a series of spectacular dashes to the height of 6,200 feet. Brookins' parents are Americans. Both his father and mother are living, and he has two brothers and one sister. Walter attended the public schools of Dayton and managed, between learning to run automobiles and watching the Wright brothers practise with their gliding machine, to graduate from the Dayton high school. That is as far as he got with theoretical schooling. After that he went out into the world and became an automobile man of more than ordinary skill. He perfected himself to such an extent in that profession that he decided to try to become an aviator.

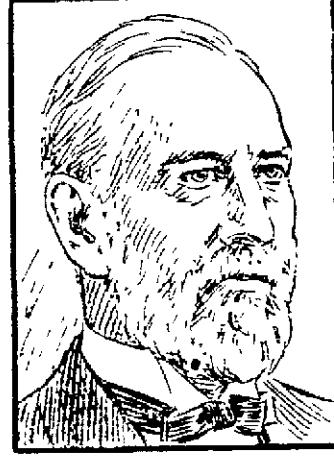

The Wrights knew quite little about Brookins as a boy. In their observations of his automobile experiences they recognized him as a safe man for their venturesome calling. They told Walt he might have a trial. Young Brookins began as a pupil of the Wrights the latter part of last March. He practised about five hours before he went up for his first flight alone. After that he kept training daily with Orville Wright. He was the first man trained by Orville Wright and it was not long before he was intrusted with the training of others of the Wright school.

Brookins' first big meet, really his first public appearance outside the Wright reservation at Dayton, was at Indianapolis last June, and he immediately started in breaking world records. Hitherto Brookins has confined his attempts at record-breaking to his specialties of height, quick turning and slow flights. He holds the world's record for the latter now, it being 21 miles an hour. This is almost as essential in the training of an aviator as is quickness in turning, both demonstrating the operator's control of his machine and the sense of oneness with his machine that he must have to be successful.

Since he started flying independently of the coaching of his trainer Brookins has made brilliant exhibitions at Indianapolis, Montreal, Atlantic City, Toronto, Detroit, Asbury Park, N. J., Boston and through the middle of Illinois on his wonderful flight from Chicago to Springfield.

It is for his coolness and intelligence that the Wrights have given him so many responsible opportunities of flight. Personally he is a clean, alert, self-controlled young man. He has no vices. He is a wholesome, energetic man.

CONSERVED HIS OWN LIFE

Henry Wallace, the new head of the National Conservation congress, is himself a living example of the possibilities in conservation of human life. Thirty years ago, while holding the pastorate of a United Presbyterian church at Morning Sun, Iowa, he was informed by his physician that his days were numbered and that his only hope of prolonging life for even a reasonably short time was to get out of the pulpit. He did not wait to preach a farewell sermon; he went back to the farm and commenced anew the simple life. Today, at seventy-four he is a vigorous and healthy man, doing his full day's labor every day and with intellect as keenly alive to every issue of the time.

Mr. Wallace's special interest in the work came to a head when he consented to associate himself with others in the work of the Roosevelt County Life commission appointed a few years ago to inquire into the needs of the farms and suggest methods of improving the life of the rural community. On that commission he was associated with Gifford Pinchot, President Bailey, President Butterfield and others.

The presidency of the National Conservation association came to Mr. Wallace wholly unsought. Before he had thought of attending the convention he stated clearly the demand of the friends of conservation. He said:

"The people of the west demand that the government shall protect the remaining resources of the nation as yet under the control of the nation from spoliation, by placing them under a cabinet officer or officers who are not merely honest, but of whose integrity and efficiency there is not the shadow of doubt, men whose affiliations have not heretofore been with the spoilers. Anything short of this will invoke the wrath of an already outraged and indignant people."

LEADER OF 'PROGRESSIVES'

In the battle between the regular and progressive Republicans in New York state one of the most prominent leaders of the latter and the principal leader before Colonel Roosevelt assumed command was Lloyd C. Griscom, diplomat and former ambassador to Italy, and the chairman of the Republican committee of New York county. When, after his relinquishment of his diplomatic post at Rome, he began to mix in the politics of the metropolis, the old leaders were inclined to be jealous at his expense, called him an amateur and said he had many things to learn.

Mr. Griscom is a native of Philadelphia, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and a lawyer. Before being admitted to the bar in New York city, which was in 1896, he became secretary to Ambassador Bayard at the court of St. James. In 1897 he was deputy district attorney of New York. At the outbreak of the Spanish war he volunteered his services, was commissioned captain and assistant quartermaster and served four months in Cuba as aide-de-camp to Major General Wade. Then he resigned to enter the diplomatic service and was appointed secretary to the legation at Constantinople. He afterward served in Persia, Japan and Brazil and was decorated by the shah of Persia and received the order of Bolivar from the government of Venezuela.

NEW GRAND ARMY COMMANDER

John E. Gilman of Massachusetts, who was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the forty-fourth national encampment, has an enviable record as a soldier and citizen. He belonged to the noted Twelfth Massachusetts, a regiment which was with the First Minnesota as having lost the largest percentage of the men it carried into any single action. Commander Gilman fought bravely with his regiment through all its battles until at Gettysburg he lost his right arm by a wound from a shell.

He joined the Grand Army in 1865, and has since been zealous and active in its service. During the dark days of the order he was one of the instigators, and has held nearly every office within the gift of his comrades as a reward for his fidelity and ability. He was elected commander of the department of Massachusetts in 1899, and gave that great department an efficient and satisfactory administration.

Commander-in-Chief Blackmar selected him for his adjutant general. He traveled with that official all over the United States, and made friends wherever he went. Commander-in-Chief King continued him after the lamented death of Blackmar, and he added to his popularity in that position. For years he has been the head of the Soldiers' Relief commission of Boston.

WELLMAN IN FLIGHT

HUGE DIRIGIBLE STARTS FROM ATLANTIC CITY—IS OFF FOR EUROPE.

CARRIES CREW OF SIX MEN

Airship Equipped With Wireless—Month's Supply of Provisions on Board—Last Message Until Craft Strikes Ships' Course Is Received.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Walter Wellman, the newspaper man, with a crew of five other daring aeronauts, are flying over the Atlantic ocean in his dirigible balloon America, with the hope of landing on European soil, providence and weather permitting, 3,000 miles away.

Wireless dispatches which have been received at intervals since the big dirigible sailed aloft at eight o'clock Saturday morning told of heavy fogs, minor engine troubles and the like, but finally an optimistic note was sounded when the splitter of the wireless announced that Wellman and his crew were doing fine and had finally determined to head for Europe.

The last message expected from the America until it strikes the trans-Atlantic steamer lane came into the wireless station Sunday at Siasconsett on the northerly end of Nantucket and read: "All well. No trouble with machinery. Expect to make the trip.

(Signed) "Wellman and Irwin."

The crew aboard the America when it left the ground included Walter Wellman, Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer; F. Murry Simons, navigator of the expedition; J. K. Irwin, wireless operator, in charge of the America's system, and Albert Louis Loud and John Aubert, assistant engineers.

The start was made at 8:03 a. m. when the America rose into fog and disappeared over the ocean, while something over 1,000 men, women and children cheered. The trip was scheduled as a trial flight, but so far as can be learned, through wireless messages sent back, Wellman and his crew decided, within 20 minutes, to start for Europe.

There are six men on the airship and they have provision, mostly of the canned variety, sufficient to last them a month. The airship's gas bag has something of the shape of a cigar and is 228 feet long. Its width is about fifty-two feet and is said to be capable of lifting about twelve tons. The envelope carrying the gas weighs more than two tons.

Attached to the big gas bag is a car 156 feet long. The floor of the car is really a large, flat tank, in which the gasoline is stored for the motors. The America carries three gasoline engines, one of which is a donkey and the other two are used for motive power. They are in the center of the car and are of about eighty-horse power. Beneath the car hangs a life-boat 27 feet long, to be used in case the balloon is wrecked.

FRAUDS FOUND IN CENSUS

Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Other Cities Are Charged With "Padding"—Taft Urges Punishment.

Washington.—Staggered by the enormous growth shown by the returns of the new census for a number of western cities, Director Durand of the census bureau ordered an investigation, the result of which appeared in the announcement Saturday that gross frauds had been perpetrated.

Mr. Durand gave out also a letter from President Taft, directing that persons implicated in the alleged frauds should be prosecuted.

Cities specifically mentioned as being affected by the frauds are:

Tacoma, Wash.; Seattle, Wash.; Aberdeen, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Boise, Idaho; Fort Smith, Ark.

It is state that there are many others.

STANLEY KETCHEL IS SLAIN

Champion Middleweight Pugilist Is Killed by Ranch Hand in Missouri—Murderer Arrested.

Springfield, Mo.—Stanley Ketchel, champion middleweight pugilist of the world, died in a hospital here Saturday from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by Walter A. Hurtz, employed on the ranch of R. P. Dickerson, near Conway, forty miles east of here.

Hurtz, whose right name is Dilley, escaped to the woods but was later arrested at the home of a farmer near Nianagua, Mo. He confessed to the killing but said he shot Ketchel because he was afraid of him, as he knew the prize fighter was armed with a revolver. He also alleged that Ketchel made improper remarks to Goldie Smith, the cook at Dickerson's house. The latter is under arrest as an accomplice.

Manuel Is Near Collapse.

Gibraltar.—His friends fear that King Manuel will become a nervous wreck. He never ventures outside the gardens of the government house and would not even leave his room did not his mother, Queen Amelie, insist on it. Manuel looks wretched, worn, scared, unkempt in fact. With broken step he walks around the government house gardens, lamenting his fate and saying he has nothing to live for now. His mother is always with him and has him under complete control.

TERrible SUFFERING ENDED

How An Allegan, Mich., Woman Regained Her Health.

Mrs. Robert Schwabe, R. F. D. No. 8, Allegan, Mich., says: "Doctors could not cure me and I was rapidly running into Bright's disease. Kidney secretions were like blood and I awoke 8 to 10 times at night to void them. I became frightened at my condition. My sight began to fail and pains in my back were like knife thrusts. I cried for hours, unable to control my nerves. After I started using Doan's Kidney Pills, I began to feel better and soon I was cured. I am a living testimonial of their merit."

Tit for Tat.

Lloyd C. Griscom, in an interview in New York, said of party dissensions:

"They are animated by a nasty spirit, a tit-for-tat spirit; and they go from bad to worse."

"It's like the case of the engaged couple at the seaside dance. The young man, a little jealous, said coldly to his fiancee at supper:

"Let me see—was it you I kissed in the conservatory?"

"About what time?" the young girl answered, with a little laugh.

Like the Other Kind.

It was in a "down east" village that the young man met his sweetheart, a charming country beauty. When he returned to the city he sent her a jar of cold cream to keep her cheeks as fresh as the budding rose.

On his next visit he asked her how she liked his little gift.

"The taste was very nice," she said, with a rather sickly smile, "but I think that I like the other kind of cream best, dear."—Lippincott's.

May Sell 100,000,000 Red Cross Seals.

Twenty-five million Red Cross Christmas Seals have been printed and are being distributed by the American Red Cross, and arrangements have been made to print 100,000,000 if necessary. It is expected that this number will be needed.

While the sticker is perforated like those used last year, it is intended for use only as a seal on the back of letters. The seal is one inch square with the conventional Red Cross in the center and the words, "Merry Christmas. Happy New Year. American Red Cross" in a circle about it. The colors are red and green. The design is by Mrs. Gulon Thompson of Waterbury, Conn., who received $100 as a prize for her sketch.

Slightly Mixed.

Two Englishmen were resting at the Red Home inn at Stratford-on-Avon.

One of them discovered a print picturing a low, tumbling building underneath which was printed: "The House in Which Shakespeare Was Born."

Turning to his friend in mild surprise he pointed to the print.

His friend exhibited equal surprise and called a waiter, who assured them of the accuracy of the inscription.

"Pon my word," said the observing Englishman, shaking his head dubiously. "I thought he was born in a man-gar!"

AS SOON BE WITHOUT MATCHES AS WITHOUT RESINOL IN THE HOUSE.

Resinol is the never failing article resorted to by my wife for the many bruises, chafings, cuts, burns and accidents of the children and has been our cure-all for years. I have used it in cases of irritation and inflammation and have invariably been relieved almost instantly. We would as soon think of being without matches in our house as without Resinol Ointment.

Thank You's.

The man who is not thankful for the lessons he learned in adversity didn't learn any.

There must be plenty of thankful ness in the world if those who have loved and lost could know just what they have lost.

"Why are you giving thanks? They took $10,000 from you in Wall street a little while ago, didn't they?"

"Yes; but I got out with $20 they didn't know I had."—Judge.
